

CLAIMS

What is claimed is:

1. A method, comprising:

providing a user interface to a client system via a network communication link, the user interface configured to capture consumer loan application data corresponding to a plurality of consumer loan applications; receiving the consumer loan application data via the network communication link; storing the consumer loan application data in a storage device; and communicating at least a portion of the consumer loan application data to the client system to enable integration of the portion of the consumer loan application data into one of the plurality of consumer loan applications.